God as a Gardener

In 2010 — 9 years ago, I started a blog on Wordpress: www.GodasaGardener.com

The focus is plants, most of them are named or referenced in the Bible. I try to write a new blog about three times/month.

In each entry,:

I tell the Bible story of the plant

Describe it (including images)

Give its symbolism.

Answer why this plant (on any plant for that matter) takes up space in a book as valuable as the Bible.

Plants aren't in the Bible by happenstance. God expects us (Christians) to use their stories to enhance our walk with him. You can sign up to receive each blog on the front page of the blog site.

Doug Jackson of Roanoke completed this caricature at a book signing at the Salem Museum. Thank you, Doug.

Happy New Year 2019!!!

What are your plans for 2019? Hopefully, a resolution will be to read more Christian non-fiction books!

Shameless

For 5 years I have written Christian non-fiction books. I self-publish and all books have an ISBN. My books are published in electronic and paperback format.

Paperback versions of all books are for sale on my website, but I only ship them within the United States to include Hawaii and Alaska. You can use a credit card or Paypal. Shipping cost is the same as for Amazon.

Electronic and paperback versions are offered for sale on Amazon. I have my own Author Page there. Amazon ships to other countries

Request

I learned from publishing and distribution gurus that it is okay to ask purchasers to buy from my website rather than Amazon when possible. That way I get to keep more profits and Bruce doesn't have to subsidize my writing.

We mail books the day they are ordered or next day. Books are signed.
